Chillin' With The Crew

Written by Tuesday, 21 December 2010 10:23

As some of you may know, the Crew went ice skating on December 19 and I think it turned out alright. It started with us arriving and doing some negotiations to end up getting a good deal on skates and the entrance fee. Our crew then went out and skated for awhile with some memorable experiences such as a few stumbles and some accidental falls. A few other guys arrived causing us to all came off the ice for a few pictures and some of us bought a few refreshments. Afterwards the Crew got back out on the ice and had a fun time, either trying not to fall or messing with our friends who were about to fall. During the last few minutes before I left, the whole group got together to take a few pictures of us as a Crew. I enjoyed the event very much and if the entire Crew wants to go again you know what my vote will be for.